CONTROL THE DESTINY OF BIG CORPORATIONS

New York Captains of Finance Who are Directors in Numerous Enterprises.

WM. H. NEWMAN, PRESIDENT OF THE N. Y. CENTRAL LEADS THE LIST—NEW MOTOR CAR BEING TRIED—A BATTLE ROYAL WITH RATS—GOSSIP OF GREATER GOTHAM.

Special to The Journal.

New York, June 2.—Director in 1906 corporation boards is the record held by William H. Newman, president of the New York Central Railroad. This is according to the 1906 volume of Directory of Directors, just issued, which credits the Vanderbilt representative with a greater number of directorships or trusteeships than any other man in the country. Senator Depew, who had for years headed the list of directors in this country, dropped back to third place this year. Frederick Underwood, the president of the Erie Railroad, is second, having a total of seventy-two directorships. William K. Vanderbilt is fourth on the list with a total of sixty-five. James Stillman, president of the National City Bank, may attend the monthly meetings of sixty-five companies as a director. He is the fifth on the list.

John D. Rockefeller, the richest man in the world, is a director in only one company, the Standard Oil, of which he is nominally the president, an office from which, however, he derives no salary. H. H. Rogers, his first lieutenant, who gets $10,000 a year as vice-president, and is the actual head of the Standard Oil Company, is a director in twenty-two companies, and when able he never fails to collect the gold eagle or double eagle which he receives as his director's fee.

J. P. Morgan, the head of the banking house bearing his name, is a director in fifty-two companies and G. W. Perkins represents Mr. Morgan's firm in fifteen companies. George Gould just heads Mr. Morgan in his directorships, being in fifty-three houses.

Hamilton McK. Twombly is seventh on the list, having fifty-seven directorships. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is in five boards, and his uncle William, who has been in Europe for the last year or more, is a director in eight companies. C. W. Morse takes an interest as a director in twenty companies, while James H. Hyde, who sought the honor at one time of displacing Senator Depew as being the greatest director in the world, is now a director in twenty-three companies. Edward H. Harriman is a director in forty-six companies. Anthony N. Brady is in forty-seven boards, and H. E. Huntington is in sixty directorships. August Belmont is in twenty-five boards, and George F. Baker, of the First National Bank, is in forty-nine companies.

New Motor Car.

A novelty of railroad construction has arrived from the Union Pacific works at Omaha, Neb., to be tried in experimental tests on the Erie railroad. It is a motor car of striking design and it arrived under its own power without a breakdown or a delay during the long run, and will be put into use at once.

Lent to the Erie by E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, the car is the seventh turned out by the latter railroad, which is to use them on runs on several of its branch roads in the West.

In outward appearance the car is a great departure from the most advanced passenger cars now in use. It is the first of its type. It has a decided resemblance to a seagoing craft, with its port-like windows, its "bow," "stern" and turtleback roof.

It is claimed that the car is watertight, dustproof and cannot be telescoped because of its round end construction. Built entirely of steel, it is fifty-five feet long and has a seating capacity for fifty-seven persons. In the forward end, or "bow," is located a six-cylinder gasoline motor, which drives the car at a speed of from forty to sixty miles an hour, and recent tests show that as a grade climber it equals the performance of the best locomotives.

As a complete train, a trailer of the same outside finish and thirty-one feet long is in use on the Western roads, arranged as a combination baggage, mail and express car.

Battle Royal with Rats.

Thousands of rats, forty policemen, several sergeants and roundmen, a footman and one fine large Thomas cat, which bears the name of July Bill, battled for hours at the Church street police station a couple of days ago.

The cause of the trouble was the demolition of the building formerly occupied by the Coal and Iron Exchange at the southeast corner of Cortlandt and Church streets. The building is giving way to a modern skyscraper. Next door is the Church street police station.

Contractor Rosoff is in charge of the work of tearing down the old exchange. In the basement were found about 100 tons of coal and in the rest of the coal were some old vaults containing ancient records of the exchange. It was found necessary to remove the coal in baskets and Hungarian and Jewish laborers were employed for this work.

Many tons had been removed when a machine was put in operation sounding for the foundations of the new building. Then the trouble began. The noise and vibration of the great machine aroused the hidden population of the vaults. All the laborers rushed up and refused to descend again. Then Contractor Rosoff went down to investigate. He also quickly reappeared. The cellar was one seething mass of rats of all ages, sizes and species.

Policemen and the station house cat were summoned, and, after battling for hours, what was left of the enemy had disappeared.

Art in Advertising.

Up to date advertising ideas have at least invaded the sacred realms of art. No longer does she hide herself in sky parlors and studios remote from the eye of the vulgar throng.

A school in West Fourteenth street in which are taught newspaper sketching and magazine illustrating occupies two floors of a building on the north side of the thoroughfare. Like the nickel plated restaurants, whose pancakes and sinkers are cooked in the window in plain sight of all, the proprietor of the art school wants the public to know that there is no sham about his methods.

The windows of the school are brightly lighted. On the lower of the two floors the class in life drawing meets every night. The model, generally a man dressed as a Western desperado, with revolver pointing at the imaginary victim, stands on a raised platform in plain sight of the pedestrians on the other side of the street. The young men and women of the class, busy with pencils, are also on public view, and the show attracts a throng every night.

Qualifications of Nurses.

The qualifications, both educational and physical, for trained nurses are steadily becoming higher. An uptown hospital with a large training school has added as its most recent equipment an examination by a specialist of the applicant's feet.

If they are found to be so weak or in such a condition that they would interfere with the usefulness of the nurse, who of necessity is almost constantly on her feet, it is considered sufficient cause for denying the application. In any case, the nurse gets a regular statement of just what bones or muscles in her feet are deficient for the strain they will be called on to undergo.

This is turned over to the director of the training school gymnasium, who immediately sets about developing the weak points by systematic exercise and treatment.

High Priced Conductor.

It is a settled fact now that New York is to have the highest priced conductor in the world. This is Wasili Sonoff, who is to conduct the Philharmonic Orchestra for the next three years and get $20,000 for his services.

The Philharmonic fathers, however, are not to pay all of this salary. They are responsible for only $13,000 of this annual sum. The remaining $7,000 will be paid by the National Conservatory of Music in return for M. Safonoff's services as director of the school and teacher of the piano. Even with two sources of supply, there was never such compensation paid to any wielder of the baton.

A Salvage Cruiser.

One man in New York says he makes a good living by what he calls cruising for salvage. He goes about in an automobile and follows novices trying to operate recently purchased machines. If the machines break down or stop he comes up in time to offer his services as a tug or to offer about half the value of the machine if the owner is so disgusted that he wishes to sell.

One of the uptown banks standing on a conspicuous corner has gained a bad name with the daily crowd of Fifth avenue pedestrians. Its financial standing is of course beyond question, but its clock runs on a very eccentric and confusing system.

The timepiece stands in a spot easily observable and has been consulted for years in spite of its tendency to wander from strict accuracy. The other day a woman excusing her lateness for luncheon said she thought she was on time by the clock in the bank.

"Oh, nobody can go by that," said her companion contemptuously. "We call that the bank where the wild time grows."

We have not backed up in this policy; we have, in fact, enlarged it every year.
